Commercial Audio & Lighting Solutions.

A one-stop solution for audio & lighting, design & control

Modern fixed installations demonstrate what is possible when audio, light and additional components are combined in manifold ways. Informing, inspiring, entertaining or simply relaxing – installation technology provides the framework for creating unique experiences. This calls for integrated solutions in which the various elements complement and enhance each other.

The Adam Hall Integrated Systems solutions evolve with our customers and their projects. This applies to signal processing as well as control and installation. Regardless of whether you need to quickly and flexibly adapt your plans or receive a follow-up order for further expansion years later – with our constantly growing portfolio of audio, lighting and control solutions as well as a wide range of accessory options, your plans are future-proof.

AH INTEGRATED SYSTEMS

Focus on integrated control

Adam Hall Integrated Systems at Integrated Systems Europe 2025

At ISE 2025, Adam Hall Integrated Systems will be showcasing its audio, lighting and control solutions for use in fixed installations. High-lights include a major update for the LD Systems QUESTRA design and management software.

With the new QUESTRA update, Adam Hall Integrated Systems is focusing even more closely on the integrated control aspect of its audio and lighting solutions. The design and management software, developed by our audio brand LD Systems, now enables third-party control and automation, with features like Logic Nodes for modular programming, time-based automation, and expanded integration options for seamless management.

With QUESTRA 1.3, Adam Hall Integrated Systems continues its journey towards a one-stop solution for specialist planners and installation providers. Setup and manage your audio AND lighting devices using a single software platform and offer your customers a uniform, fully customizable user interface for everyday use.

With our commercial audio, lighting and control solutions, you can seamlessly cover a wide range of applications. On the following pages, we will present the most common application fields, including best practice cases.

Education

Create inspiring learning environments

Educational facilities require high-quality audio and lighting solutions that are easy to operate and can be flexibly adapted to both in-person and hybrid events. Alongside excellent voice intelligibility and playback quality in acoustically challenging rooms, lighting solutions provide the perfect illumination for various application scenarios. The full package is completed by comprehensive control solutions that enable real-time monitoring and remote access via network in addition to content and device management.

Houses of Worship

Houses of Worship

Sharing experiences

Today, places of worship are being used in ever more diverse ways. In many cases, services are also broadcast as live streams. In addition, houses of worship have always been used as special venues for concerts and other events. However, when it comes to technology, the following applies: as precise as possible, as discrete as necessary. With the integrated audio, lighting and control solutions from Adam Hall Integrated Systems, these heterogeneous requirements can be met without conversion work and duplicated costs.

Hospitality

Welcoming customers with excellent sound & light

Whether you are in a café, restaurant or hotel – tailor-made audio and lighting design plays a vital role in today's hospitality industry to make the customer experience as pleasant as possible. Ideally, the rooms in question should be planned and used multifunctionally from the outset, such as for after-work sessions with a DJ, lectures or small concerts. With our indoor and outdoor solutions, you can flexibly design and equip bars, restaurants or hotel lobbies to cover a wide range of application profiles without the need for conversion work.

Leisure

Enhancing the experience

From theme parks and trampoline courts to fitness clubs, museums and live experience venues – when people gather in their free time to seek recreation or active experiences, the installed technology must be individually tailored to the environment to support seamless operation. The commercial audio, lighting and control solutions from Adam Hall Integrated Systems have proven its reliability and flexibility in countless projects around the world, even when wind and weather, water or impacts are tough on the tech.

Project Support

From specialist planners and installation companies to architects and everyone else involved in the project: our service and application team will support you with every aspect of your project.

The Adam Hall Integrated Systems support team includes the customer support professionals, field application engineers, service technicians and more. We work together to support our customers in every phase of their installation projects. Our team gives advice on choosing the ideal system components and technologies and helps with creating planning documents such as block diagrams, equipment specifications and parts lists.

In close collaboration, we develop individual system designs that are precisely tailored to your requirements and support you with the integration into existing systems or designing new systems. We also take care of software configuration, including setting up control systems. If required, our experts will be on site to assist with system startup and commissioning, installation and setup.

In addition, Adam Hall Integrated Systems offers hands-on trainings and certification programs to ensure optimal deployment of our solutions. We also provide troubleshooting support. With comprehensive documentation, professional project management and reliable after-sales support, we ensure that your projects are a success at all levels.
